FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Riverview Teacher, Dr. Mike McNally, honored by Chevron and Pittsburgh Steelers!

The Pittsburgh Steelers and Chevron, have announced that Riverview teacher, Dr. Mike McNally has been chosen as one of this year's Leaders in the Classroom.

The Leaders in the Classroom program, in its second year, recognizes pre-kindergarten to high school teachers from Southwestern Pennsylvania and Northern West Virginia for innovative instruction and the ability to engage students.

McNally was nominated by a parent of a high school student. His nomination form stated that Mike "has shown each of our students that they are gifted by getting them involved in something that lets them really apply what they do best by using their unique abilities through innovative, competitive, outstanding real-world examples."

Chevron representatives, along with school officials and students, surprised Dr. McNally during a high school faculty meeting where his selection as a Leader in the Classroom was announced and he received his award. During the celebration, Dr. McNally was presented with a check for $1,000 to purchase classroom materials to support his unique approach to student learning. He was also given a Pittsburgh Steeler's jersey, with his name embroidered on the back. Additionally, Mike received two tickets to the Steelers and New England Patriots game which will take place on December 17 at Heinz Field. During the game Mike will be recognized along with 16 other teacher winners who were selected from over 100 nominees. Thank you for everything you do for our Riverview students Dr. McNally!
